

Software Engineering

Refiye Şehnaz YILDIRIM - 171805012

24 November 2020

YOUR LIBRARY

Content

- What is the purpose of the project?
- Who are the users of the project and what are their needs?
- What is the domain of the project?
- Use-Case Diagram
- What are the main functional requirements of the project?
- What are the main non-functional requirements of the project?
- What are the highlights of the product backlog and sprint planning strategies?
- What have we learned while working on the project?

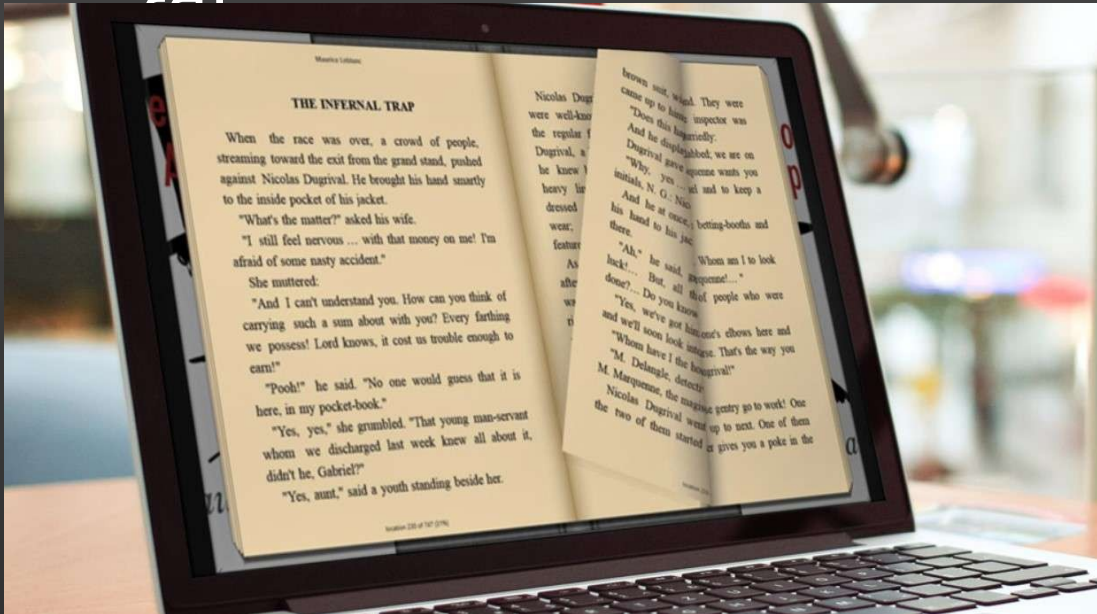

What is the purpose of the project?

- Providing the user with books that they can read and download on an online platform
- Providing the user to create their own library

Who are the users of the project and what are their needs?

- To be able to read their favorite books online and

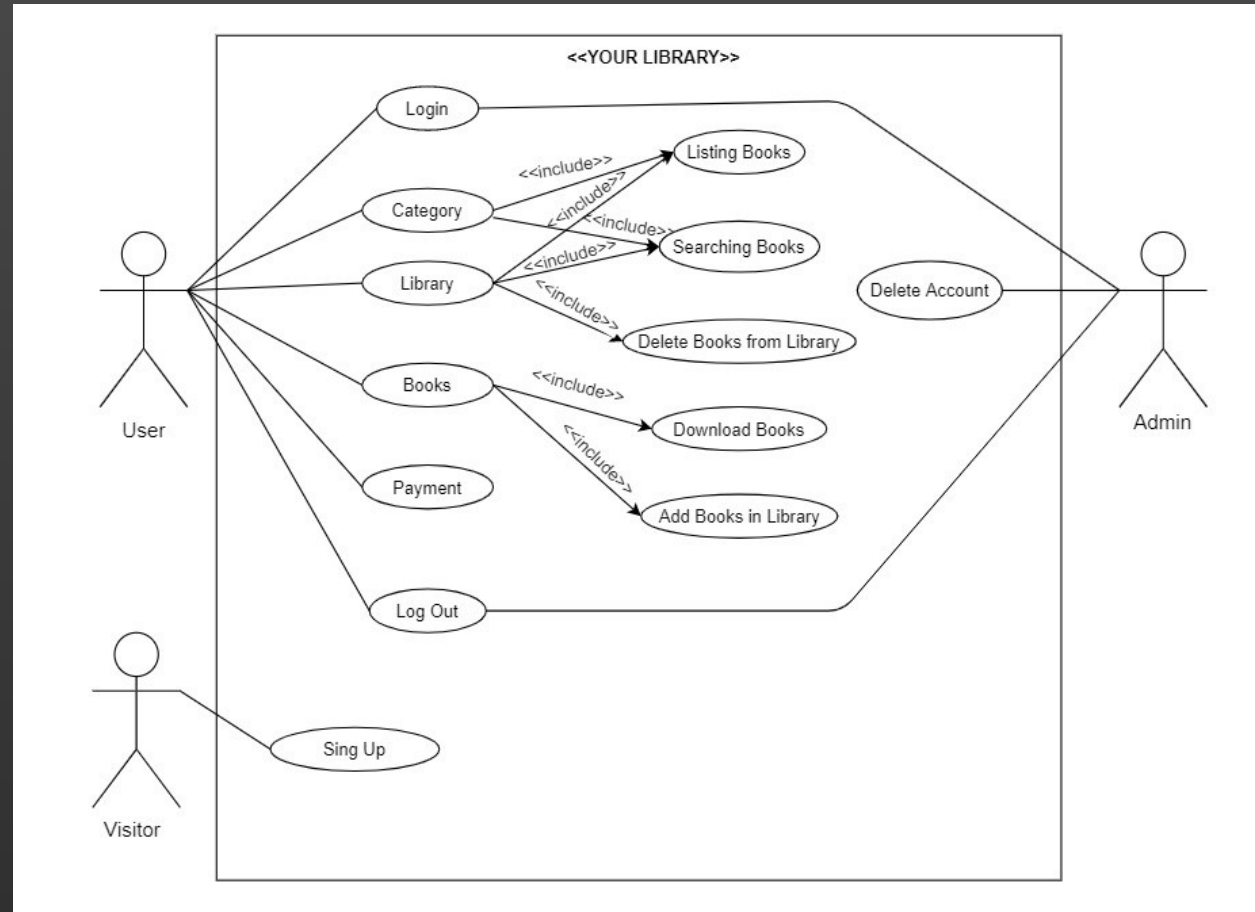

What is the domain of the project?

- <http://www.yourlibrary.com/>

Use-Case Diagram

What are the main functional requirements of the project?

- Allows Admin to delete Users.
- Allows user to store books on their private library and delete them.
- Allows user to search books by their titles.
- Stores books and categories in same database as default with separate tables.
- Takes payments by PayPal.
- Enables to search, request, and renew platform from any computer around the world.
- Allows to everyone the registration and during that it checks emails if its already exist.

What are the main non-functional requirements of the project?

- Performance requirements
- Security requirements
- Usability requirements
- Operational requirements
- Legislative requirements
- Safety requirements
- Ethical requirements

What are the highlights of the product backlog and sprint planning strategies?

- First Sprint
 - Login
 - Search
 - Delete
 - Logout

What are the highlights of the product backlog and sprint planning strategies?

- Second Sprint
 - Add Book
 - Pay
 - Registration

What are the highlights of the product backlog and sprint planning strategies?

- Third Sprint
 - Delete User
 - Download Book

What have we learned while working on the project?

- Agile project management
- We discovered our strengths.
- The importance of different ideas
- Active feedback from customers

Thank You For Listening